

Turn Spare Time Into Extra Money

Census 2000: An important job that pays

Got a little spare time? The U.S. Census Bureau has some of the best paying temporary part-time jobs in the country. We'll train you to be part of Census 2000 and help count everyone in your community. The job lasts for approximately four to six weeks starting in the spring, and the hours are flexible. You'll work evenings, weekends, and when people in your community are home. It's perfect for seniors, retirees, or people who need extra income.

The Census pays well because making sure everyone gets counted is an important job.
